

Kanazawa Institute of Technology (KIT) in Kanazawa, Japan is looking for three qualified summer course instructors of Japanese language to teach in the KIT-Summer Program in Japanese (KIT-SPJ) 2019. The program will be held from June 12 to July 25 (approx. 6 weeks), and the contract period is from June 5 to August 1, 2019 (8 weeks). KIT-SPJ is open to engineering or science related major students enrolled in KIT's sister universities in the US and UK.

Qualifications: Applicants must: (1) have a master's degree in Japanese pedagogy or related fields, (2) have at least two years' experience teaching courses at a university or equivalent institution, (3) be able to design a language course curriculum, (4) have an advanced level of English proficiency, and (5) be willing to work in a team.

Duties: The instructors will: (1) design one of the courses (zero beginner level, semi-intermediate level and intermediate level), (2) teach about thirty 100-minute classes in total (basically 1 class/day, Mon.-Fri.) (3) assist program activities such as field trips and cultural events, and (4) produce a program course report. They may be assigned to help teach a Japanese culture course in addition to a regular language course.

Salary will be determined according to the standard KIT salary scale. Round trip transportation (economy class airfare) between the applicant's current location and Kanazawa will be paid. Those who need housing during the program can stay in our new KIT International Community House, where all the program participants are also housed, for 1,500 yen/day (utility costs included). No key money/deposit required.

NOTE: No guest, even a family member of the program instructor, is allowed to stay overnight in the housing for security reasons.

Send a "rirekisho" in Japanese (in any format, a handmade is acceptable. A bust shot photo is preferable.) including: (1) information on your teaching experience (name of the institution, status, course level, period, responsibilities), (2) a letter of recommendation (in either Japanese or English) from a person who can assess your teaching skills. If the recommendation letter is submitted separately, please specify who will submit it. Applications and/or recommendations may be sent electronically. Inquiries are also welcome.
